

A No, sir; I have no recollection of going inside.

Q You didn't go in and try the door to see if it was open?

A Not that I remember; then we walked down to Carman Street which is just below.

Q Did Mrs. Hall say anything when you saw the church was locked?

A I have no recollection of what she said; then we went as far as the Mills house.

BY MR. PALZER:

Q How did you happen to go to the Mills' house; do you remember anything being said as to where you were to go then?

A I haven't any recollection. I suppose her thought was that Mrs. Mills might have been suddenly sick and Mr. Hall might have been there.

Q You don't recall her saying anything?

A No, I don't; four years is rather a long time; and then we didn't stop, but we just happened to look at the house, saw that everything was dark; they lived in the upper floor; we turned around and went up Carman Street to George, from George we crossed Commercial Avenue; from then we went to Jones Avenue; up Jones Avenue to Redmond Street; from Redmond Street into the
